Negro Monstrosity.

[Springfield Republican.]
A Buffalo darkey, named George Thomas, is astonishing the Providence doctors with his marvelous command over the mechanism of his body. His abdomen is naturally full, but at will, without the use of his hands, he gives it a wave-like motion, and it gradually sinks in as if being wound up, until it apparently rests close against the backbone, and presents the appearance of a man with no abdomen, and then in the same manner he rolls it out to its orignal form. He then drops from under his ribs a duplicate set of ribs, with a breast-bone, when the original ribs and the duplicates can be distinctly felt and counted, and the whole front of his body is, as it were, iron-clad. Or, at will, he ap parently drops his heart from its natural position some twelve inches, puts it back and sends it to the right side of the body opposite its natural position, puts it back and sends it to the lower part of the body on the right side thus putting it in four different positions. He also has the power to stop the beating of his heart at will from five to ten seconds at a time, the pulse stopping at the same time. He seems also to have considerable strength, easily bending by a blow on the arm a heavy iron cane which he carries, Of course, many of these effects are due to trickery, but the doctors all unite in regarding him as the greatest physiological curiosity they ever have seen.

[Springfield Union.] The publication of Tilton's cross-examination before the investigating committee tells overwhelmingly against him. He confesses overwhelmingly against him. He confesses that in his previous public utterances on this subject he has sought to give a false impression; in English, he has lied. He describes this objectionable habit by saying, "I have always had a strange technical use of words." He needn't call it strange, however; there is nothing commoner than lying.

Rumored Retirement of Bristow-Who will Go into the Cabinet.

Washington, July 31 .- The rumored re tirement of Bristow from the Treasury to accept the Attorney Generalship is revived again; and as credence is given to the rumor by those in official position to know what is contemplated by the President, it is deemed worthy of consideration.

The Secretary of the Treasury says it was complained by some of the clerks, dismissed under the limitations of the appropriation laws, that justice has not been done. He says notwithstanding his desire to make a fair distribution, it appears many were permitted to remain who could have been dispensed with, thus making room for eqally efficient and more needy clerks. His desire to learn the truth of these statements led him to direct a further inquiry to be made, especially regarding several members of the same family holding appointments in the departments.

It has been found that heads of hureans and chief clerks have in many instances in terpreted civil service to mean places for all their children capable of filling office. These cases will be reduced under the present system. It will be some days before the mat ter will be in a condition to go into opera tion.

Special to the Cincinnati Commercial of to-day. An idea of the mischief that would result from a refusal of railroad companies to have a postal car, may be obtained from the state nent made by Superintendent Bangs, of the Postal Railway Service, to the effect that the withdrawal of these cars from the trunk lines would compel the Government to rent four large warehouses in New York city, to be used in making the distribution of mails that is now done in hese cars. The Assistant Superintendent also states that the threatened action would hrow an immense mass of mail matter into the principal post offices—so great that it could not be handled at all. The delays that would result would prove intolerable to the business men of the country.

The extent of this railway post office business may be gathered from the following figures: Number of offices in operation on the last day of June, 1873, was fifty-nine, covering nearly 15,000 miles of railroad and steam-boat lines; number of clerks 752, at a yearly expense of $1,000,000; the aggregate daily service is about 35,000 miles. The railroad uen are disposed to be beligerent, particularly because the post office authorities op-posed before Congress not only an increase n their compensation for hauling these cars, but also their proposition that in a case of dispute as to the amount of such compensation the matter should be submitted to arbi

The Solicitor of the Post-office Department ems clearly of opinion that the Governnent can seize and operate roads refusing to have postal cars. It is thought in some well nformed quarters that Mr. Hinckley, of the Willmington road, will not carry out his threat to leave off these cars after the 1st

The general belief and expectation are that the Treasury Secret Service will not be abolished entirely, but that some modifica-tion thereof will result from the recent examination into it by Solicitor Wilson Several new schemes have been suggested by which to detect and prevent counterfeit-ing and other frauds on the Govern-ment, but the existing custom, with some improvements, and the various objectionable features modified or entirely eliminated, will doubtless be continued. One of the practices about which great complaint is made, is that of keeping detective surveillance over Government employes at all times, whether they are on or off duty.

A circular will be issued in a day or two showing the condition of the suspended Freedman's Bank.

An arrangement is being made with the Custom Department of Canada by which more accurate statistical returns of the trade relations between that and our own country can be secured.

Secretary Robeson left to-night for Rye

[Special to the Cincinnati Gazette of to-day.] Gen. Sherman continues to be very positive in the expression of his opinion regarding the Indian policy. From his conversation to-day it is evident that he does not regard the Indian troubles as of a serious haracter, and he expresses the belief that they will soon die out, as such troubles have done hitherto. He says, however, that so long as the Indian race remains upon the earth there will be trouble between them and the whites, and whether the Indian is governed by the bayonet or the Bible, there will never be perfect peace between the two races. Judging from his standpoint, nothing but extermination will settle the question. He says the army is small and widely scattered, but that in case of any determined warlike action of the different tribes of Indians, the army, depleted as it is, would be able to protect the settlers and their property. One serious difficulty, he said, in dealing with the Indian ques-tion was that, when war seems probable, several join their forces, and it is hard to distinguish he guilty parties. He believed that the In dian peace policy influenced to a large de-gree the agents; but that none in reality believed in that policy, while all admitted that its effect would cripple and defeat the that its effect would cripple and defeat the best policy of the government. This policy, he said, placed the government before the Indians in the attitude of supplication, begging for peace, and indicated its lack of confidence in itself in case of war.

The General said that now both the President and Secretary of War were willing to have the headquarters of the army removed to St. Louis, and the change would be made within two months. He says the business within two months. He says the business may be done there with as much care, accuracy, and safety to the Government, as in Washington, and with much greater personal satisfaction to himself.

Sindicates to the Secretary that what has been said on the subject of expected disturbances at Vicksburg by the Lieutenant Governor coincides with his views entirely.

The dispatch has been forwarded to the President at Long Branch, and it is believed that when the matter is fully settled, the whole correspondence between the War Department and Lieutenant-Governor Davis will be given to the public. In the meantime, protests are being received from the citizens of Vicksburg against any interference on the part of the general government, and indicating that no disturbance on the day of the approaching election is probable.

A special dispatch to the Baltimore Sun from this city to-day, says that some weeks from this city to-day, says that some weeks ago it was announced that a Republican ago it was announced that a Republican daily newspaper, to be the organ of the party, was soon to be started in New York. This is now denied, and it is stated on what is supposed to be good authority that the organ of the party is to be started in this city in October next. G. W. Childs, of Philadelphia, who is said to hold peculiar confidential relations with the President, is to be the publisher. The paper is to be published twice daily. morning and afternoon, and is twice daily, morning and afternoon, and is to advocate the third term principle.

Despite statements to the contrary, the So licitor of the Treasury has not yet made his report to the Secretary upon the safe burglary business in respect to the question of re-organizing the Secret Service Division. The Solicitor has made his report, but the Secretary of the Treasury declines at present to let it be published. There is no doubt entertained that Secretary Bristow will sweep these excrescences from the public service. Secretary Robeson leaves to-night for Rye Beach, and Secretary Bristow will leave on Saturday next to spend some days with his family at Deer Park, Maryland.

A report has been started to the effect that Hugh McCulloch would soon be appointed to a Cabinet position, but although he has been to see the President there is no reason to believe that his name would be even serious y considered for the position.

The speculations as to Washburn's return to take a place in the Cabinet, and Williams accepting a foreign mission, though lacking confirmation, are regarded by well-informed persons as having a better foundation.

NEW YORK CITY.

The Beecher Business-Moulton Ready to Testify-What the Golden Age Says

NEW YORK, July 31. No other day since the revival of the Beecher scandal has been so uneventful as esterday. Every point connected with the affair has been so thoroughly discussed that there seems little more to be said. The meeting committee yesterday was of slight importance though three witnesses were examined. Some disappointment was expressed that neither Storrs nor Moulton

Moulton is still at Narragansett and Storm at Princeton. Letters have been sent to Frank Carpente

Letters have been sent to Frank Carpenter and others asking them to appear and tell what they know. Beecher remained at home during the day receiving few visitors. Tilton was left more to himself than during any previous day, and devoted himself to needed rest. Tilton's council, Morris, had a long interview with the district attorney yesterday regarding Gaynor's case. Both shared the opinion that though Gaynor had a technical right to institute proceedings against Tilton in practice, he would have no standing in court. Morris has been for a long time in the controversy of Tilton against Beecher.

Tilton, when he called at Ovington's house on Sunday night, expressed a wish to treat Mrs. Tilton magnanimously, and said what ever she wanted from the Livington street house she could have. Mrs. Tilton being informed of this made out a list of nece wearing apparel and other things, but when the messenger presented the order Tilton ex-claimed: "Mrs. Tilton can take away her lothing, but not another devilish thing shall e taken from this house.'

Beecher's statement though concluded on Wednesday has not been presented to the committee, by advice. He is waiting until Moulton's testimony has been given. Al though ready at any time, his friends urge that Moulton must/preceed him as a witness. Moulton, it is reported, left Narragansett last night and will be in Brooklyn to-day. There is a mystery about his movements and pparent disinclination to appear alleged important documents. If Moulton efuses to testify the committee cannot render a verdict satisfactory to the public or them-

Moulton has frequently declared Beeche nnocent of any crime. His declarations to this effect are in writing and will appear in evidence before the Committee. Beecher's statement will probably not be made public pefore next week. As soon as Moulton tes ifies the Committee will, it is understood hold sessions morning, afternoon and evening, until all the evidence is taken. The Committee meet again to-night.

A special says: The stories of collusion between Tilton and Gaynor grow entirely out of the fact of Gaynor's connection with the Argus, which has been a strong partisan of Tilton throughout the matter, and whose managing editor, Mr. Maverick, is the gen-tleman who assumed the responsibility of publishing Tilton's statements. It was known to some of Gaynor's fellowreporters that he intended to begin this action, and they incautiously alluded to it two or three days before the arrest was made This fact is now quoted to indicate that Mr. Maverick, as Mr. Tilton's friend, was also aware of Gaynor's purpose and encouraged it; but there is no just reason for believing this to be, in any sense, true. The suspic ion of collusion is not general, it all being confined entirely to a few hot-headed parti-sans of Mr. Beecher. The committee were in considerable anx iety to know what effect such a suit would have. Some of them were convinced that it would result simply in the introduction of Tilton's testimony without giving Beecher a chance to submit his, and consequently efforts were to he made to stop the proceedings. The committee also decided, informally, to publish a card disclaiming any knowledge of the intention to arrest Mr. Tilton.

The Golden Age this week has a short editorial on the Beecher scandal. Regarding the present status of the case, it claims that nothing has been said or done to break the forces or neutralize the effect of Tilton's statement. Beecher's letter in replying is markened by avulanations and suggestions weakened by explanations and suggestions that confuse more than they clear up. Mrs. Tilton's letter injures her husband more than helps herself. The moral effect of both is damaging to the defense, and the course of Beecher's counsel has re-acted against their client. It claims a court of law is the only investigating committee provided by society for the trial of such grave cases, and only regrets Tilton's arrest because the complaint is made by an outside, irresponsible person. It refers to Moulton as Beecher's friend and intimates that his silence is in Beecher's interest. If Beecher goes down weakened by explanations and suggi in Beecher's interest. If Beecher goes down it will be because he has ruined himself by his own acts and compelled exposure of his

The Alligator's Retreat.

Col. Caleb G. Forsney, of the New Orleans Academy of Science, apropos of the question whether snakes swallow their young, states that this habit is certainly found among alligators. "The alligators swallow their young," says Professor Forsney, "I have ocular demonstration in a single case; and have the universal tradition of negroes and whites in this region of Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas, that such is their habit. In the winter of 1843-44 I was engaged making a survey on the banks of the Homochitto lake. The day was warm and sunny, and as I halted near the margin of a pond partly dried up to pick some shells, I started a litter of young alligators, that scampered off, yelping like puppies, and retreating some twenty yards to the bank of Lake Homochitto. I saw them reach their refuge in the mouth of a five-foot alligator. She evidently held open her mouth to receive them, as, in single file, they passed in beyond my observation. The dam then turned slowly round and slid down beneath the water, passing into a large opening in the bank, beneath the root of an ash tree. Doubtless this refuge is temporary, and the young are released at their own or the mother's pleasure."

The Most Powerful Poison Known. It is said that osmium is the most powerful poison ever known. At the recent meet ing of the Paris Scientific Academy, M. H. Sainte Claire Devine, a member of the learnand has implicit faith in Tilton's cause. He says he knew for a year past that the facts must come out, and horrible as they are they must now be established.

Sainte Claire Devine, a memoer of the learned assembly, offered to his colleagues, in a perfectly tight vial, eight kilogrammes—about fifteen pounds—of osmium. Osmium, he said, is the most poisonous of all poisons. Twenty pounds of it would be sufficient to poison the entire population of the world. One thousandth part of a grain of osmic acid set free in a volume of air of a hundred cubic yards, would possess such a deadly influ-ence that all the persons respiring the air could be nearly killed. Osmic acid is so much the more dangerous because no coun-ter poison is known against it.

THERE is a rest in the scandal to-day

THE Democrats need a key-note in this county. A KEY-NOTE should not be keyed even a trifle too high. A KEY-NOTE is that which is mostly needed in our business. THE "key-note" will be sounded to-night by Senator Morton, at Terre Haute. Why don't the Democratic organ sound a key-note? Hasn't it got its pay yet?

CHARLES READE, in the opening of Griffith Gaunt, speaks of "Artemus, the delicious;" and as Mr. Ward is mixed up more the free-lovers, grange organ here is done with a view to There are now Granges in all the States, put an Independent in as United States and about thirty in the Canadas, and if Senator. This will be sad news for the they could be held together and directed three or four Democratic leaders who have in one way, it would be an easy matter for fondly hoped for that place themselves. They may be like the old widower who are differences of opinion in Granges as objected to the marriage of a young couple well as in all other bodies, and when it when the minister called for any one who knew why that marriage should not be celebrated to step forward or forever hold their peace. "I object," said the widower. "On what grounds," asked the nothing but religion that will change a preacher. "Well, sir, because I have reserved that gal for myself."

IF the Indiana Democrats had adopted such as a platform as is embodied in the Illinois Democratic platform, it would have been an easy matter to carry this State and this county. It is possible they may carry the former as it is, but they are not likely to carry the county. The district is doubtful. A good man nominated would make it very hot for Gen. Coburn with the chances against the latter, but a rank inflationist and a Bourbon Democrat, who can only get his party vote and perhaps not that, will stand no show whatever. Gen. Coburn starts in with the advantage of a majority of over two thousand to over. come, and if the Democrats think that is going to be an easy job, they are very much mistaken. Gen. Coburn is a good man and has made a fair reputation. He does not represent the views of a great many Republicans, however, to say nothing of some Democrats, and there are many who would prefer voting for somebody else. But that somebody else must be a better man and a man who holds to a different political belief, and a different financial belief, or he will not get elected. There are enough people who believe this way to easily control the district. They know what John Coburn is for he has been tried, and they are not going to vote for a worse and inferior man who will believe anything that will get him votes, merely for the sake of change.

THE New York Tribune is preaching sound doctrine again. At one time it strayed off after false gods, or perhaps more truthfully, looked kindly upon idolatrous practices. When the "Independents" held their convention here and adopted a platform which has scarcely a parallel in the history of modern poli ities for ignorance and dangerous opinions, the Tribune saw great good in it, not because it was good in itself, but because it indicated a breaking away from existing parties. We contended that a breaking away was not a good thing when it broke in the direction of unsound opinion and demoralization; that a political change was not necessarily beneficial, because it was a change. The Tribune, in an article we copy to-day, touches upon the dangerous tendency of men to commend a thing because it is not as bad as it might have been, and regards it as an indication o decadence. It cites the opinion expressed of the Democratic platform in this State, by one of its correspondents, and asks what it can say "of the indifference of men 'who know better, who look at this impos-"sible mixture of folly and knavery and 'say it is not as bad as they expected." Yet the Tribune did very much the same thing with the "Independents." In an swer to its interrogatory, we can only tell it to say that these people are falling into a lethargy unfortunately too prevalent and one that is likely to prove dangerous.

LEADING Republicans often console

themselves for the blunders of their party. by saving that no matter how badly they do, the Democrats can never take advantage of their mistakes but generally go further and make worse ones. And it is about true. The Democratic party has had several opportunitias to beat the Republican out of its boots had it been an active, aggressive party, instead of a mere negative unreasoning opposition. The platform adopted on the 15th is a fair specimen. It had a good word for almost everything that could command a vote, but in skirmishing around it made one grand error. We are talking now of the policy exhibited. The Civil Rights bill was strongly denounced in order to make capital against the Republicans. This was a piece of gratuitous folly. The Civil Rights bill is not an issue nor is it likely to become a law. To condemn it would not gain a sin-Rangers and a body of the tenth United gle white vote, while it would drive States cavalry and the Indians, the latter off every colored vote. The Democrate off every colored vote. The Democrats would have gained at least a thousand negro votes this year, and a thousand votes in a State as close as this is an item worth considering, and what is more would have destroyed the political unity of the colored people and divided them up as they ought to be both for their own good the welfare of the counand The Democracy not drove them off, but exhibited an inclination to drag up the old dead and buried war issues, and have thus given the Republicans a text to preach the same old sermon from. If Senator Morton does not take advantage of it in his speech at Terre Haute to-night, and bring out the same old raw head and bloody bones he has trotted over the country with for the last ten years, then he is not the man we take him for. The question is dead, or at least not vital enough to hurt, and the temper of the times is such that it is not likely to receive much attention, but still it was a blunder in the Democracy to permit the opportunity.

No wonder the politicians are afraid of the Grangers. Statistics furnished the National Grange at Washington estimate that the aggregate number of Granges is or less with Reade's novels, which are not much less than twenty thousand. On mixed up with the Beecher-Tilton matter the 1st day of June Iowa had the largest and the free-love crowd of "reformers," we number, being 1,994; Indiana had 1,968; republish Mr. Ward's experience among Missouri, 1,929; Kansas, 1,321; Illinois, 11,481, and Kentucky, 1,101. The Cotton

They do say that the procuring of a and Gulf States alone had 4,065 Granges. them to govern the country. But there comes to getting men into new ways political, to change their notions, their parties and their associations, the work is too much for the Grange principle. There is man so rapidly, and temporal interests, strong as they are, will go but a little way. As a political party we have no faith in the Grangers. The kind of men who come to the top and are permitted to take the lead and the unconsidered, unreasonable doctrines so positively adhered to, give no sign of promise or improvement. The history of the railroad war shows a disposition to trample upon the rights of others and an intent to govern in the interest of one class. The course of the party in this State has not been one to win confidence, its convention having been run by decayed and unsavory politicians who long since lost influence and standing in their respective parties, and having enthusiastically adopted and grasped to the heart the very evils which have injured the business of the farmer, and which today are grinding the very life out of him, namely, an irredeemable currency and a high protective tariff. The specious demagogues who preach the "independent" doctrines have much to say about "Wall street" and "Eastern bondholders" when they ask for an inflation that would bankrupt the country, but we have yet to hear of the first one of them denouncing the pig iron, or salt, or coal, or lumber rings which are eating the heart out of the main industry of the country. Somebody introduced in the present

Council-or was it the last?-an ordinance prohibiting the blowing of steam whistles anywhere, or by anybody, in the city. We had no hope of its passage, or even of its consideration, because it was a timely and judicious proposition, and those are a sort of thing that our City Council is unlikely to appreciate. We think we said as much at the time, though we have forgotten just when the time was. Sure enough our doleful prediction was fulfilled. Nothing was ever heard of the ordinance after its introduction. It was sent to some committee on purpose to die, and if it had been reported back, there would have been as much consternation in the Council as the separate chunks of Gengulphus made at his wife's banquet. Just why the body should be so very tender about an infernal uproar that assails everybody's ears and nerves, it is hard to see. Nobody can be so factory managers who have whistles, and the railroads, while every quiet-loving man and woman from Fall creek to Pleasforever. There could not be a more thoroughly popular measure devised, unless it would be an enlargement of Mr. Brown's idea of running the city government with less revenue than outlay, to such a point as would do the work without any revenue or tax at all. We never hear the squealng, roaring nuisance spoken of that it is not condemned as utterly unnecessary and horribly annoying. It certainly is. It is of no use to anybody, not even the estab lishments that maintain it, and the Council can easily ascertain that fact if it wants to. It has been the cause of a good deal of serious sickness, or the aggravation of it, and of death, no doubt, if the truth as well as annoying infliction, with no could be fully ascertained. It is a crime more excuse or palliation than there would be for firing a twelve gun battery twelve times a day to notify workmen of the hours as they passed. Still a body which is dependent on pop ılar favor, and is more than supposed to truckle very humbly, for votes at times, won't lay a finger on this worthless and unpopular practice No other city in the union of the same size or importance allows its people to be tortured four times a day by factories, and a thousand times a day by locomotives, to city in Europe allows it at all. Even railroads in the country are limited in their screaming range. At the very best they are a necessary affliction. In their ordinary relations they are simply a nuisance. Only the other day the Massachusetts railroad commissioner after a thorough investigation, recommended the disuse of locomotive whistles in crowed neighborhoods, and the substitution of automatic signals. Why not here as well as there's But especially why shall not the stationary engine whistles be silenced? They have no track to clear or danger to avert. They do really nothing in the way of warning workingmen, except in the case of estab lishments like the Indianapolis rolling mills, which run "turns" of irregular length. They do nothing at all except afflict poor, suffering humanity. [Springfield Republican.] We admire the consistency of condemning the newspapers, up hill and down, for dealing with the Beecher scandal and then going into the pulpit and preaching about it. The Sunshine's Story. BY ETHEL LYNN.

Four little pictures, that was all, To tell his ended life

Out of his mother's feeble hand I took them one by one, To read his story, short and sad. Told by the faithful sun.

"This one"-she rubbed it with her sleeve-

A round and rosy little face, With awkward, frightened stare, And sturdy, nervous, school boy hand Clutched tightly on a chair. And this was in his college days,

When he went courting you!'
I pulled the veil across my face,
And near the picture drew. The very knotting of the tie I loved to see him wear.

When browner shone these locks of mine That folded glimmer gray, When life no dim becember knew, Only the merry May.

I laid it with a silent sigh, Softly upon her knee, Remembering how my stubborn pride Had parted him from me. How bitter pain had followed fast,

Repentance all too late— For him, in time, a loveless wife; For me a lonely fate! "And this," she said, "was the best of all,"
But—part of it was gone;
"I rubbed her figure off the plate—

A bearded mouth, a sterner face

I could not keep it on!

The outline of a woman's dress, Along the mimic floor; A blot, large as a woman's hand, The shoulder plainly bore.

A blotch that came so hear the heart! What pen could better tell The tale of faithless queen uncrowned? What picture half so well?

They say. It came to me With gun and cap and hasty lines Scrawled lying on his knee." Over the soldier's solemn face.

"And this was taken at Fair Oaks,

That time shall touch no more Nor sunshine find to add a line, Nor shadow darken more. I looked, so I might not forget;

Then whispered low a prayer,
If I might unto Glory come,
That I should know him there.

An Oriental Slory.

The Rev. Mr. Jessop has written a book, and two other clergymen have edited it. It is all about women, and it is funny. Mr. Jessop was a missionary in Syria, and his book is called the "Women of the Arabs." Mr. Jessop has two grievances-when he arrived in Syria he found American missionaries were already there, and after he had been there a year, he discovered that the emissaries of Rome were laboring to win Syria to the Papacy. "Monks, nuns, Papal Syria to the Papacy. "Monks, nuns, Papal legatees, Sisters of Charity, Sisters of Nazareth, Jesuits, Lazarists, Capuchins, Dominicans and Franciscans swarm in the land.' They swarmed so effectually that Mr. Jesson nad nothing to do but write a book, and in this book he tells a good story-one so good that we copy it:

"There was a shrine where an ancient prophet was supposed to repose, his tomb being kept by a Sheikh named Ali. This shrine was on a hill, under a big oak tree, and the white dome could be seen for miles around. Lamps were kept burning day and guished them they were miraculously lighted again. Men with sore eyes came to visit it and were cured. The earth around the tomb was carried off and used as medicine. Nobody knew the name of the prophet, but the tomb was called 'Kobr en Nebi,' or Tomb of the Prophet.' Sheikh Ali drove a wonderful trade in selling incense, and in receiving the offerings of the faithful. At ast his servant, Mohammed, who attended last his servant, Monammed, who attended him, became weary of living in one place, and asked leave to go and seek his fortune in distant parts. So Sheikh Ali gave him his blessing and presented him with a donkey, that he might ride when thred of walking. Then Mohammed set out on his journey. He went through cities, towns and villiages, and at last came out on the mountains east of Jordian, in a desert place. No village or house was in sight, and night came on. Tired, hungry and discouraged, Mohammed lay down on his donkey, on a great pile of stones, and fell asleep. In the morning he awake, and also his donkey was dead. stones, and fell asleep. In the morning he awoke, and, alas, his donkey was dead. He was in dispair, but his kindly nature would not let the poor brute lie there to be devoured by jackals and vultures, so he piled a mound of stones over his body and sat down to weep. By came a rich Hadji, returning No more striking instru from Mecca, and asked Mohammed the son of his grief. Mohammed replied that he had found the tomb of a holy prophet, and was in sore distress, for he could not afford to be its keeper. The good Hadji Mohammed with a rich gift, and riding off, spread the news, and pilgrims thronged to the spot with rich presents and offerings. As money came in Mohammed brought masons and built a costly tomb, with a tall white dome that could be seen across the Jordan. He lived in a little room by the tomb, and soon the miraculous lights began to appear in the tomb at night, which Mohammed had kindled when no one was near. He increased in fame and wealth, and the prophet's tomb became one of the great shrines of the land. At length Sheikh Ali What was his surprise to recognize in the holy keeper of the tomb his old servant Mohammed. said Sh Salam, alaykoom,' Alaykoom replied Mohammed. he asked When him how he came here, and how he found this tomb, Mohammed replied, "This tomb is a great 'sirr,' or mystery, and I am forbidden to utter the secret." "But you must tell ne," said Sheikh Ali, "for I you," Mohammed refused, and Ali insisted, until at length Mohammed said, "My honored Sheikh, you remember having given me a donkey. It was a faithful donkey, and when it died I buried it. This is the tomb of that donkey." "Mashallah! Mashallah!" said Sheikh Ali, "the will of Allah be done!" Then they ate and drank together and renewed the memory of their former life, and then Shiekh Mohammed said to Sheikh Ali: My master, as I have told you the "sirr" of my prophet's tomb, I wish to know the secret of yours.' 'Impossible,' said Ali, 'for you must tell me, even as I told you.' At length the old Shiekh Ali stroked his snowy beard, adjusted his white turban, and whis pered to Mohammed: 'And my holy place s the tomb of that donkey's father. shallah!' said Mohammed, 'may Allah bless the beard of the holy donkeys!'"

Not So Bad. [From the New York Tribune.]

Several philosophers, writing at different times and in different tongues, have ex-pressed the same thought that a man has reached his decadence when he acknowledges a bad habit without hoping to reform it. A young man may puff at his Concha without caring whether it is right or wrong. He may say that it is wrong and that he intends to quit some time. He may pick up the cudgels of controversy, like Prof. Fiske, and say boldly that it pays. But when one says frankly, "I know it is a pernicious vice, but I don't suppose I shall ever store. says frankly, "I know it is a pernicious vice but I don't suppose I shall ever stop smo king," it is certain that he is no longer young. We are too young a nation to think of decadence, but there are sometimes moments of moral languor in our best public opinion which bear a dangerous resemblance to the said they fitted better than any she had in a infirmity of age. charged with complicity with malefactors it was thought enough to talk of his behavior at Antietam. When General Butler was criticized for an act so marked with knavish cunning as his advocacy and engineering of the Salary Grab, an act whose de-moralizing influence embraced Congress, the President, and both political parties in a common taint of sordid and yulgar dishonesty, his adherents talked only about New Orleans, or chuckled over the ingenuity with which "Old Ben, who didn't want the money, got the advantage of the sanctimonious Congressmen who did." And by one of those sudden turns so common among people of faint moral convictions, we see that some of the Democratic papers in the West, which once teemed with libelous slanders against Butler's personal and pecuniary honesty, which we have never credited, now overflow with eulogies of this champion of inflation; as if they were willing a man should be a thief, if he would only help them in a No more striking instance of this tender to be satisfied with low standards has been seen than the comments made by hard-mon-ey people upon the rascally repudiation and inflation platform of the Indiana Democracy. We do not so particularly refer to the partisan journals which, finding themselves at variance with their party on this vital question, see that their only chance of life the desperate task of proving that their party is with them. But among decent people, who care but very little for pariy, and care a great deal for honesty and good govern-ment, there is a too evident inclination to say that the platform might have been worse. Among these persons is an oceasional correspondent of the Tribune at Indianapolis, whose letter we published a day or two ago. So bad was the atmosphere about the Convention, so groveling was the tone of it, dishonor and knavery seemed so interwoven with all its works and utterances, that when it adjourned there was a general feeling of gratified surprise that it had done nothing more reprehensible than adopt Pendleton's repudiation scheme. It declared itself in favor of unlimited greenbacks, for its resolution about suiting the currency to the wants of the country means nothing else; it in so many words demanded the payment of the National debt in this and irredeemable paper; and then, merely because it passed a platonic resolution in favor of a return to specie payments when we get ready, or, as the children say, "next day after never," a good many well-meaning people, who see the folly of inflation and the crime of repudiation, draw a long breath, as if a great danger had been averted. It is hard to imagine what they expected. of repealing the Ten Commandments, abolishing society, and setting the Wabash on fire, it is difficult to see what criminal non-sense they could have been guilty of, beyond the platform they adopted.

The Convention was formed mainly of ignorant men who knew very little of finance or politics. They wanted to win the next election and they had heard that the farmers wanted more money, and knowing that greenbacks were good enough for them they thought they were good enough for the bond-holders; and yet they had heard that a great many people were in favor of specie as a circulating medium, and they recognized the fact that specie was also a good thing; so they put them both into the platform, or rather Mr. Voorhees did, and they thought it as smart a thing as he had ever done. ignorance which is capable of producing such a confession of faith is bad enough: though it is not hopeless, for education cure it. But what shall we say of the indif-ference of men who know better, who look at this impossible mixture of folly and knavery, and say it is not as bad as they ex-

Remarkable Escape. [Savannah News.]

Yesterday morning an incident of a most exciting and thrilling character occurred at the depot of the Atlantic and Gulf railroad, upon the arrival of the passenger train. A Mr. Gibson, who was expecting his wife and Mr. Gibson, who was expecting his wife and little son from Florida, went to the depot for the purpose of meeting them. As the train rolled slowly into the depot, his little boy, who was kneeling on the seat by his mother, looking out of the window, spied his father, and with a cry of delight, and ere his mother had the state of the window. satisfied with things that we recognise as vicious, is the worst habit that a man or community can form. But who can deny that in our recent politics there is something too much of this? In the late address of the Republican party, the tone that runs through it all is that it is rather small busines to ask strict honesty and integrity from leading public men who have saved the Union and abolished slavery. When a candidate for Governor of Pennsylvania was

The Gatling Gun Test. Quite a number witnessed an exhibition of one of the new Gatling guns at the State Fair grounds yesterday afternoon, prominent first, close money matters; second, room wanted for fall stock, hence such reducamong whom were General Carrington, Gen. Scott Brown, of Kentucky, Gens. Love, Macauley, Morris, Dr. R. J. Gatling, the inventor, and other military personages. The State Guards were out in full uniform, and the beating of drums and firing of cannon gave the occasion quite a warlike aspect, and forcibly reminded one of the days when war with its accompanying evils devastated the land. After a cursory examination of this instrument of death by those present, a practical illustration of its workings and effectiveness was given under the direction of Dr. Gatling, which proved quite satisfactory to the spectators and eminently so to the inventor himself

A target one foot in diameter was placed at a distance of one hundred and thirty feet, and after firing 120 rounds an examination was made, showing that 70 of that number struck inside of the target, while the remainder averaged a distance of about 15 inches from the mark. The instrument is a beautiful piece of mechanism, simple in its construction and most effective in its work-

The gun comprises ten barrels eighteen inches in length, each of which is provided with its own independent lock and so arsubstituted at a moment's notice. The locks also revolve simultaneously with the barrels, carrier and inner breach and the gun loads and fires incessantly while these several parts are in motion. The gun is fed by means of a vertical hopper in which are placed forty cartridges, the hulls of which drop out from beneath, after the discharge. The piece can be so arranged as to give it an oscillatory motion, enabling the operator to take in a wide range without changing his base of operation. The effort required to give the instrument its proper revolution is very slight, and one man can work it with ease and rapidity. The instrunent is mounted on a tripod and can, in an nstant, be transferred to any point within a circle precluding the possibility of its cap-ture by a flank attack. The gun on exhibition yesterday discharged two hundred shots in twenty-five seconds and is capable, its inventor claims, of firing 500 shots in a minute. At a test at Annapolis, by the Navy Department, it discharged 4,000 shots in 10 minutes and 40 seconds. Its weight is something over 100 pounds, costing $1,000, and doing effective work at a distance of one mile.

There are eight different sizes of these runs manufactured, the largest of which can send a ½ pound ball a distance of 2½ miles with telling effect. It was noticeable vesterday that the barrels became very much heated after several discharges, but the oper ator claims that it will stand 100,000 discharges in succession with the greatest safety (to the gun).

The Gatling, which with equal propriety may be called a "rattling" gun, is one of the most effective and destructive weapons of war ever invented, and will eventually be adopted in all countries.

The two guns on exhibition are the prop erty of the State, and will be stationed at the Arsenal awaiting an invasion from Morgan or some other unwelcome intruder.

The Hippodrome.

The Hippodrome is a novelty, unique as a circus movement, and excelling the "old circus," because it dispenses with a flatheaded clown and his ribald staff. Perhaps a majority of the audience in attendance yesterday were disappointed by the clown's absence, and sighed for his threadbare jokes which have gone the weary rounds season after season, but there were very many who appreciated the relief and thanked their stars for the happy circumstance. The canvass is very large, giving room for a quartermile track, around which dash fleet-footed horses, at dangerous speed. The main features were the races in chariots, two of them four horses abreast, and nothing can be more exhilarating than their wheeling on to the home-stretch and careering by the judges' stand. Then were had the Indians, genuine Aborigines, muscular and active, with the game of LaCrosse, war dances, and the burlesque of Captain Smith saved by Pocahontas. Hurdle racing came next, and in due time a walking match by Green, the champion. Next a running race, in which a colored jockey was thrown and severely bounced amid great excitement, and so on through a long and varied program. The last was a baby show, some fifteen or twenty contestants, in which a handsome prize was awarded to little Mary Royce, months old; who was a beauty, and no mis months old; who was a beauty, and no mistake. After the Hippodrome was over, Robinson's minstrel band gave a show under the universal scorn under a new name and in a ers, canvass to several hundred spectators, wherein Clark Gibbs, Frank Coffin and others took part.

Throughout the three entertainments the audiences were very large and orderly. To day Buckley & Co. show at Greencastle, and to-morrow at Terre Haute.

Immeasureable Infamy. [From the New York Dispatch.]

In the statement of Mr. Tilton he proves but one thing: that Theodore Tilton is the most contemptible wretch we have ever read of. After having caught, as he alleges, Mr. Beecher locked in the bed-room of his wife. he continues his friendship for his betrayer for years and receives that soiled wife to his bosom. Then, after having forgiven both for the alleged crime against him, he begins to whisper to demireps his story of his great wrong. We can imagine no more contempti-ble creature than Mr. Tilton's own portrait of himself. If Mr. Tilton has been actuated by the wish for an immeasurable infamy, he has admirably succeeded. To-day there is not a man in all the world so infamous as he. do not believe one iota of his story; but if it were true, that would not make him less dis graced. The man who can gloat over his own dishonor, who can drag the name of the mother of his children into the gutter, and still have "a merry twinkle in his eye," who can forgive in one hour and defame in the next, who can say "my dear friend" this mo-ment and shout "infernal villian" the next, and keep to this course of conduct for years is a man who knows not the moral difference between infamy and honor, disgrace and re

If Mr. Tilton is capable of appreciating his present position before the world, we should think he would wish to flee from the face of distant land.

"Poltroon and rascal," "shameless and unabashed," "utter infamy," "liar and cuck-old," are sweet words for a man to have old," are sweet words for a man to have flung at him. But there is not one of them undeserved. The name "Tilton" and the word "intamy" will hereafter mean the same word "intamy" will hereafter mean the same ty. John Childers, the insurance agent, has a gifted horse, which he says knows ever house insured in his company. She stops at every new house she comes to unless it has the company's card on it, and sniffs with wrath when she passes any house insured in any other company. Mr. C. is the head of a Sunday School and regards the truth.

A crowd of young hoodlums have made a habit of late of congregating at night about the premises of Mrs. Prasse, on Virginia ave nue, where they make night hideous with their loud and boisterous doings, and this morning a warrant was issued for the arrest of John Flemmin, one of their number, with a view of breaking up such gatherings here

A prominent pious gentleman, not unconnected with the newspaper business—there be such, for the saving of the Sodom of journalism-had his dignity disturbed this morn ng, when, after he had asked the divine dessing on his frugal meal, and was prepar ing for business, his cook rushed in with a plate of hash, hurriedly exclaiming: "Here, Mr. Halford, this ain't been blessed!"

Now they are endeavoring, and with some show of success, to show that the Hon. William Cody is not the true Buffalo Bill, but that William Mathewson, a modest man of nuscle, is entitled to the distinction of which the cheeky man of the melodrama has robbed him. This is a dastardly attempt to rob modest merit of its dues. Both are mposters. Buffalo Bill is an honest milk nan of this city, and drives the Hazel Del wagon.

How?

At a late hour last night officer Herman was approached by a woman on West Washngton street, who informed him that a stillborn babe lay wrapped in some clothes on the pavement near the rolling mill, and rejuested him to look after the little stranger. 1 he Usual Riot.

Last night the canal bank near Ohio street was the scene of another monotonous riot -Ella Harter, Ada Mountjoy, Grand Dale and Mike Quinn taking a part therein. The women fought until they were as bloody as beasts, and the multitude that gathered witnessed the impromptu prize fight with the keenest relish. As usual, no police hove in sight till the thing was over, and then the two women were hunted up and carted off to the central station. Was there somebody at the head of the city government with backbone, penalties could be visited that would prevent constant repetitions of these disgraceful street scenes. Nearly every evening there is a fight or a war whoop along that canal bank, and the residents are sighing again for the good old days when Kiley and Taylor bossed that section.

Played for $5,000.

An old gentleman from Pennsylvania, giving the name of E. Anderson, early last evening fell in with a squad of three-card monte men. Turner and Lawrence, said to be two of the parties, and was played for $1,000-in payment of which he had only a $5,000 Eastern draft, on which he intended to realize here. By some means one got hold of this draft, and under the plea that he wanted to get one of the Occidental Hotel proprietors to identify the endorser, left him standing on the Hates House corner, while he crossed to the hotel. In two or three minutes this Pennsylvanian smelled a mouse, and rushed over to the Occidental - but the bird had flown. His grief and nervousness made it almost impossible to get a coherent story, and he was finally quieted sufficiently to telegraph East in order to stop payment of the draft.

Utilizing the Telegraph in a Business

[New York Bulletin.] A new company has been formed here called the Commercial Exchange Telegraph company, the object of which is to connect every business house with each other through a main office, by simply indicating to the latter the number of the house with which they wish to communicate, and immediate the connection is made with the wire o that house the communication becomes private. This will save time and trouble to men of business, in knowing how their customers' references regard them, for while the purchaser of bills is waiting, the former can determine what to do. The cost per year is $250. Not a few of the leading houses have already availed themselves of the advantages presented by this much needed arrangement, which no doubt will soon come into general use.
